Protect Our Oceans - Improve Our Marine Protected Areas

The long-awaited proposed new Marine Protected Areas legislation public consultation document has been released by the Ministry for the Environment. Public submissions are due 11 March 2016.

Have your say. New Zealand's oceans and marine wildlife need your help.

This may be the one chance in our lifetimes to create legislation that allows meaningful protection of our oceans. Let's make sure the Government gets it right. Together, we have the opportunity to turn the Marine Protected Areas Act proposal into a bill that genuinely protects our marine ecosystems and wildlife.

Key Messages

- Current legislation is 45 years old and only allows Marine Reserves to be established for scientific purposes. It also gives extremely high weight to the objections of all other users of an area. So we need new legislation that supports the creation of Marine Reserves for conservation values.
- Support the proposed legislation's commitment to delivering a meaningful network of representative Marine Reserves (fully protected, no-take areas) and other Marine Protected Areas. These areas must contain representative examples of the full range of marine communities and ecosystems, and also outstanding, rare, distinctive or important marine habitats. Marine protected areas need to meet their objectives and achieve conservation outcomes.
- The proposed legislation EXCLUDES ALL OF THE EEZ which is 96% of our marine environment. So say you want to include the Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) and Extended Continental Shelf in the new MPA legislation. We want to have a say in how our marine environment should be fairly and equitably used. If we can fish, mine and drill in the EEZ, it is essential that we protect parts of it too.
- The proposed legislation puts a strong emphasis on the economy. We believe that protection of the marine environment should not be constrained by short-term economic interests, and that no-take Marine Reserves provide significant opportunities for sustainable business ventures in underwater tourism and eco-tourism.
- It is proven that Recreational Fishing Parks do not protect, restore or enhance biodiversity. Recreational fishing parks are not biodiversity conservation tools. This fisheries management tool is already available in the Fisheries Act and should remain there along with similar tools. We suggest the category of recreational fishing parks be removed from the proposed legislation.
- If you love diving and snorkeling let them know you are sick of looking at an empty ocean and want more accessible, fully protected marine reserves so you can see marine life in all its diverse and bountiful nature.
